ABOUT THE COLLEGE

Barrett, the Honors College is a selective, residential college that recruits academically outstanding undergraduates to Arizona State University. As stated in The New York Times, Barrett Honors College is widely considered the gold standard of honors colleges and programs (https://www.nytimes.com/2015/08/09/opinion/sunday/frank-bruni-a-prudent-college-path.html). Barrett at ASU is internationally known as the model for supporting honors students from multiple disciplines. Barrett stands alone in dedicated resources, size and complexity, with a presence on four ASU campuses, a multimillion-dollar endowment used to support honors students and their projects, and dedicated deans, faculty and staff that include seven administrators, 42 Faculty Fellows and 62 staff within the college and more than 1,800 faculty members who teach honors students university-wide each year. Barrett represents a powerful and unique combination of the special care and attention an honors student should expect to receive in academics and advising from an excellent residential liberal arts college, with the vast program choices and research mentoring resources of a vibrant Research I university. This honors community is known nationally for its record-breaking number of National Merit, National Hispanic, and Flinn scholars, and nationally ranked numbers of recipients of Fulbright, Truman, Goldwater, Udall and Marshall fellowships.

In 2009, Barrett opened the nation's first comprehensive four-year residential honors college within a top-tier Research I university. The $140 million nine-acre honors campus community on the Tempe campus includes all the Barrett Faculty Fellows and administration offices, classrooms, residence halls for 1,700 honors students, a signature dining hall, refectory and café, and several courtyards, student lounges, activity rooms, computer labs and a community center. The four-year residential campus in Tempe expanded to the Vista Del Sol property across the street in 2013 and now accommodates 1,500 additional beds for upper-division honors students, the honors admissions and recruiting operations, and an entire campus of community space, offices and amenities that include a theater, pool, writing center, fitness, recreation and events facilities. Barrett students on the Polytechnic, West and Downtown campuses also enjoy new facilities and the benefits of living in growing honors communities that offer academic and co-curricular experiences and faculty and staff solely committed to enabling the best education possible for intellectually engaged students from Arizona, America and the world.

There are numerous internship opportunities developed exclusively for Barrett students, and many of the nation's top companies, government agencies and non-profits specifically seek opportunities to recruit Barrett students.

Barrett students on all four campuses are leaders outside the classroom as well, and they cultivate service and leadership opportunities both in Barrett and across ASU serving as officers in student organizations, mentors, tutors and change makers. Barrett offers a full range of student-driven service, wellness, arts, cultural, social, entrepreneurial, professional development and sustainability programming.
