The English program at ASU's West campus uses literary works to examine issues of class, gender, race and ethnicity. You enhance your writing skills and gain a stronger ability to think critically, preparing you for a variety of careers such as in teaching, law, business, marketing and politics.

Program Description

Students in the BA program in English learn how to write clearly and effectively, to think critically and to construct well-supported arguments.

The program stresses the formal aesthetic qualities of texts and the issues of class, gender, race and ethnicity relating to literary representation. Students gain a familiarity with standard literary-critical terminology and an awareness of various theoretical approaches to literary study. Students also become aware of uses of the English language in the U.S. and around the world.

The program provides students with a balanced overview of major literature in the English language and an awareness of the role of literary discourse in broader social and historical contexts.
