The social justice and human rights program at ASU's West campus prepares you to be an advocate for social justice and the protection of human rights. You can find a rewarding future advocating for victims and survivors of human trafficking, domestic abuse and disaster relief and for migrant populations.

Program Description

The BA program in social justice and human rights spans the social sciences and the humanities to prepare students to meet the challenges of 21st-century issues of social justice and protection of human rights in local, national, international and global contexts. The degree program introduces students to principles and practices of everyday humanitarianism, multimedia advocacy and theories and practices of social justice and human rights.

Students in the program have the opportunity to select from three uniquely theoretical and applied areas of focus, including advocacy and social change; critical trauma studies and everyday humanitarianism; and materialism, intersectionality and inequality.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150% of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program.
