Philosophy, Religion and Society, BA

ASRELBA

The philosophy, religion and society program at the West campus of ASU educates students on ways philosophy and religion influence American politics and social structures. With a choice of concentrating on applied ethics, philosophy or religious studies, graduates find impactful careers in politics, education and social service among many other career fields.

Program Description

The School of Humanities, Arts and Cultural Studies offers a BA in philosophy, religion and society in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences at ASU's West campus.

The program comprises historical, theoretical and practical perspectives on philosophy, religion and social ethics and emphasizes social and political concerns by putting the studies of philosophy and religion into action. This interdisciplinary degree offers three areas of concentration: applied ethics, continental philosophy and religious studies.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange (WUE) program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees.
