Social and Cultural Analysis (Ethnicity, Race and Indigenous Studies), BA

ASSCAERBA

The concentration program in ethnicity, race and indigenous studies focuses on study of the cultural and political experiences of racialized and indigenous groups. An examination of the history, sociology and culture of these groups make our graduates vital assets in civil rights organizations, NGOs, and in the political and corporate sectors.

Program Description

The BA program in social and cultural analysis with a concentration in ethnicity, race and indigenous studies combines transdisciplinary topics and methods to critically analyze relationships among individuals, groups, institutions, governments, economies and environments. The program enriches the study of individual racialized and indigenous groups by drawing upon theories, methods and pedagogies in ethnicity, race and indigenous studies while engaging complementary fields of literature, history, sociology, oral history, sexuality, queer studies, social justice, and transnational and cultural studies. Coursework grounds the students in a deep understanding of the particular historical, social, economic, cultural and political experiences of individual racialized groups as well as in an analysis of the relationships among them.
