Art (Photography), BFA

Develop your photography skills in one of the finest photography programs in the country.

Program Description

Students in the BFA program in art with a concentration in photography are offered an education in the creation and analysis of photographs as a form of creative expression.

Students work in a wide range of photographic media including specialized 19th-century processes, traditional black-and-white and state-of-the-art digital output.

The internationally recognized photography faculty at ASU are diverse, representing and encouraging a wide range of approaches to the creation of photo-based art. Students learn to be self-disciplined and self-directed, to understand complex ideas around how images function in their work, and to develop a strong sense and control of the craft of photography. The Northlight Gallery engages students and provides opportunities to learn about gallery and museum practice through the mounting of exhibitions and working with artists and the collection.

A portfolio submission is required for a Bachelor of Fine Arts with a concentration in photography. Students are not able to register for upper-division photography courses until their portfolio has been submitted and reviewed, which is typically submitted during the second year of study. To be eligible to submit their portfolio, a student must have completed either ART 204 or ART 205 (transfer credit is applicable). Students must submit the online application Google form and a digital portfolio by the posted deadline. There is a fall and spring portfolio review opportunity.

Portfolio details: It is to consist of 10 to 15 student-edited jpegs (72 dpi 1200 pixels on the longest side) sequenced in a Google Slides presentation titled with the student's name. A student who has completed ART 204 should submit scans of silver gelatin black-and-white prints. Students are welcome to include text; the text should not cover the images unless the text is part of the artwork. There are to be no empty text frames on the slides.

Global Opportunities

Global Experience

Study abroad programs in countries such as France, Japan and South Africa refine students' own creative vision and comprehensive knowledge of the theory, practice and history of photography. The international practice of photography allows students to expand their portfolio and to pursue onsite locations similar to those found only in the professional field. https://goglobal.asu.edu/

Career Opportunities

A degree in the arts offers students a pathway to a rich and varied choice of careers. Students with a photography degree may work as independent studio photographers or contract for commercial work for firms, museums, galleries, individuals and other artists. Though this is not a commercial degree program, some students apply their skills post-graduation by doing product photography, portraits or event photography. Students have also started their own successful art galleries.
Photo skills hone a particular sensitivity to issues of representation and a heightened sense of time, among many other life-enhancing attributes. These critical and creative sensitivities can be brought to bear in life after graduation whatever career path a student chooses. The bachelor's degree is essential for advanced study leading to the terminal MFA. This advanced degree offers opportunities in:

- curatorial work in galleries, museums and historical collections
- history or studio areas
- nonprofit arts organization management
- university teaching

Career examples include but are not limited to those shown in the following list. Advanced degrees or certifications may be required for academic or clinical positions.
