Dance (Interdisciplinary Digital Media and Perform.), MFA

Would you like to advance your knowledge of new media practices and dance? In this program, you examine and explore the interconnections between movement and digital arts, through interdisciplinary coursework and research in both the School of Music, Dance and Theatre and the School of Arts, Media and Engineering.

Program Description

Degree Awarded: MFA Dance (Interdisciplinary Digital Media and Performance)

The MFA program in dance with a concentration in interdisciplinary digital media and performance builds on the strength of the School of Music, Dance and Theatre and expands into the specific area of new media practices.

The concentration provides a select group of graduate students a rigorous, in-depth opportunity to specialize in dance as well as transdisciplinary digital arts. The degree is normally accomplished within three years of residency. The interdisciplinary classes and research activities of the transdisciplinary School of Arts, Media and Engineering that are part of this concentration give students access to advanced media equipment, studios, project funding and interdisciplinary collaborators.

The program welcomes a diversity of students, including returning professionals, who have experience or interest in choreography, dance science and somatics, dance teaching praxis, dance and technology, community engagement, practices of equity and inclusion, professional partnerships, and dance scholarship and theory. The Master of Fine Arts program in dance seeks students whose approaches are interdisciplinary, cross-cultural in nature, and who are self-motivated, able to have clear and demonstrated objectives, and are willing to explore new possibilities in the field of dance and beyond. Students are encouraged to develop their potential as creators, performers, teachers, thinkers, and art advocates. Frequent showings, a final Master of Fine Arts project, a written document and oral defense are required for degree completion.

Degree Requirements

60 credit hours and a bound document

The degree program involves three years of residency:

- a final Master of Fine Arts applied project (8 credit hours)
- a written document
- an oral defense
- required coursework in the concentration taught by AME (18 credit hours)
- electives (15 credit hours)
- required courses in the School of Dance (19 credit hours)
- ongoing showings of work

The current Master of Fine Arts program is normally accomplished during three years of residency in the School of Music, Dance and Theatre. Ongoing showings of creative work are required. Foundational coursework is offered in areas of creative practice, movement practices, pedagogy, professional development, technology and theory.

Students enrolled in the program specialize in areas related to independent research. The Master of Fine Arts applied project, which may involve producing original choreography, presenting a lecture demonstration on a body of research or another form of original work, acts as the culminating experience of the program. Completing the process are a presentation, a final written document, reflective in nature, as well as an oral defense.
