Asian Pacific American Studies, BA

LAAPABA

Explore how immigration, race relations and globalization influence and shape individual and community experiences of Asian Pacific American peoples and policies in the U.S. Be better prepared to actively participate in your community, workplace and in society or go into fields like law, business and medicine.

Program Description

The BA program in Asian Pacific American studies provides an opportunity for students to study the long history and rich contemporary experiences, cultures and communities of Asian Pacific Americans in the Southwest.

Dedicated, inspiring faculty lead students through a liberal arts emphasis on critical thinking, complex reasoning and solid writing skills, preparing them to engage in research that informs meaningful dialogues between policymakers, educators and society at large about Asian American and Pacific Islander communities for years to come.

The Asian Pacific American studies program is housed in ASU's School of Social Transformation, the only school of its kind in the United States.
