Communication, BA

LACOMBA

Our program gives students tools to understand, analyze and respond to communication problems and opportunities in interpersonal relationships, workplace teams, and community, civic and cultural groups. Strong foundations in the humanities and social sciences aid in exploring the complex role of human communication in everyday life.

Why study here?

Program Description

The BA degree program in communication at ASU's Tempe campus focuses on how message processes create, maintain and transform identities, relationships, workplaces and communities. This program provides a culturally based liberal arts focus with a second-language requirement. Such courses and activities will allow students to explore many fascinating questions, such as how messages can optimally advocate for a cause, sports team or organization, how people can communicate creatively in a variety of settings and styles, how valid messages differ from invalid messages, how and why cultural differences make communication difficult and why some topics are difficult to discuss and consistently lead to conflict.

Through rigorous coursework and rewarding applied experiences, graduates gain effective communication skills that are highly sought by employers. Students learn to write and speak effectively and are able to convey complex ideas simply. They are prepared for employment in communication-intensive fields or for graduate study.
