Communication, PhD

Our highly ranked communication doctoral program combines a supportive and dynamic environment with strong interdisciplinary training, research and teaching opportunities. From translating traditional communication theory and research for the public and communities to creative workshops and performances, our communication students and award-winning faculty are changing the world.

Program Description

Degree Awarded: PHD Communication

The graduate faculty members of communication offer a transdisciplinary graduate program leading to the PhD in communication. Areas of emphasis are available in interpersonal, intercultural and organizational communication. This program also provides coursework and resources in rhetoric and performance studies.

The program is housed in the Hugh Downs School of Human Communication and is designed to prepare scholars for research-oriented careers in universities and in the public or private sectors. Students are provided training in communication theory, research methodology, and a specialization in one or more areas of concentration. The goal of the program is to meet the needs of students whose interests transcend traditional disciplinary boundaries as exemplified by participation in our transdisciplinary research initiatives.
