English, MA

The MA in English, offered face-to-face or online, prepares students to be scholars, writers and editors and to work in a variety of professions, including government, public humanities, libraries, museums, advertising, fundraising and public relations. Options for the culminating experience offer students flexibility to meet their professional and academic needs.

Program Description

Degree Awarded: MA English

The MA program in English allows for a variety of transdisciplinary studies within four distinct tracks:

Comparative literature --- Students interpret cultural productions in English and at least one other language, and they explore approaches ranging from textual criticism, critical theory and translation to cultural studies and the social sciences.

English studies --- Students in this online delivery format option learn how to interpret and articulate complex cultural, historical, literary and language related ideas into accessible material for general audiences through a series of courses from across disciplinary areas of study.

Literature --- Students develop and hone skills in oral presentation, writing and critical thinking while exploring social, historical and cultural contexts.

Writing, rhetorics and literacies --- This program offers a wide array of courses encompassing the history, theory and practice of rhetoric and pedagogy of writing.

At a Glance

- College/School: College of Liberal Arts and Sciences
- Location: Tempe campus or online
Accelerated Degrees

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

English (Literature), BA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (ENG 593) and a foreign language exam, or 30 credit hours including the required capstone course (ENG 597) and a foreign language exam, or 30 credit hours, a thesis and a foreign language exam

Required Core (3 credit hours)
ENG 501 Approaches to Research (3)

A student may pursue a track in comparative literature, English studies, literature, or writing, rhetorics and literacies. All tracks have a foreign language requirement.

Comparative Literature
one course in concept and methods (course in comparative literature, criticism, or translation)
four courses in a language other than English
electives

English Studies
one course in linguistics
one course in literature
one course in writing, rhetorics and literacies
one course in English education
electives or research courses

Literature
one course in literary theory
a distribution requirement
electives
two courses selected must be graduate seminars at the 600 level

Writing, Rhetorics, and Literacies
one course in composition theory
one course in rhetoric theory electives, which must include six credit hours of graduate seminars at the 600 level

Culminating Experience (3 or 6 credit hours)
ENG 593 Applied Project (3) or ENG 597 Graduate Capstone Seminar (3) or ENG 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information
Students should see the academic unit for an approved course list.

The capstone culminating experience option is available to students in the English studies track only.
Students in this track must take the capstone. Students in one of the other tracks may select an applied project or thesis for the culminating experience.

---

Admission Requirements

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

1. graduate admission application and application fee
2. official transcripts
3. statement of purpose
4. resume or curriculum vitae
5. three letters of recommendation
6. academic writing sample relevant to the field
7. proof of English proficiency
Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in comparative literature must prove fluency in a foreign language to a level sufficient for graduate study. The one to two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should detail the applicant's background, reasons for wanting to do graduate work in comparative literature, and plans for the future.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in English studies (online program) are required to submit two academic or professional letters of recommendation (a third is optional). An academic writing sample is not required. The two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should explain how the applicant's academic and professional interests fit with the English studies track of the Master of Arts in English. Applicants with undergraduate majors in English, foreign language, history, philosophy, liberal studies, or other areas in humanities will be considered.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in literature are required to have an undergraduate major in English. Those who do not have a major in English are encouraged to register as nondegree students while they take supplementary courses, as identified by the advisor. The one- to two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should detail the applicant's background, reasons for wanting to do graduate work in literature, and plans for the future.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in writing, rhetorics, and literacies may have undergraduate majors in fields such as, but not limited to anthropology, cognitive science, communication, comparative languages and literatures, education, English literature, history, law, modern languages, philosophy, political science, psychology, religion, rhetoric or composition, sociology, or speech and hearing science. The one- to two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should detail the applicant's background, reasons for wanting to do graduate work in writing, rhetorics and literacies, and plans for the future.

Attend Online

ASU offers this program in an online format with multiple enrollment sessions throughout the year. Applicants may view the program description and request more information here.

Application Deadlines

Fall

Spring
Contact Information

Department of English | RBH 125
enggrad@asu.edu | 480-965-3194
Admission Deadlines