Literature faculty and students love to read, ponder and argue. We ask how we imagine ourselves and our world through texts. Studying literature deepens a student's sense of empathy: what it means to be human, and to consider the diversity of identities and ideas.

Program Description

Undergraduate students can pursue BA degrees in English with concentrations in creative writing; linguistics; literature; secondary education; and writing, rhetorics and literacies. A bachelor's degree in English is also offered completely online.

Students in the literature concentration study British, American and global literatures in English, from the earliest writings to the present. The distinguished faculty in the Department of English are actively engaged in creative writing and scholarly research. Students gain practical experience through research and internships that prepare them for an ever-expanding variety of careers. The undergraduate programs also prepare students to continue their studies in graduate and professional programs.
