English (Literature), PhD

LAENLITPHD

ASU’s PhD in English (literature) boasts an internationally recognized faculty with expertise across historical, geographic and theoretical boundaries. Offering a flexible, interdisciplinary curriculum, a strong mentoring program, and a variety of internships and professional development opportunities, the program prepares students for entry into academia as well as a variety of careers.

Program Description

Degree Awarded: PHD English (Literature)

The PhD program in English with a concentration in literature promotes the study of the production, distribution and reception of texts; of their linguistic, rhetorical and literary structures and functions; and of the internal and external forces shaping literature. The program offers courses that examine chronology and genre while also considering the importance of embodiment. Many courses explore issues relating to gender, class, race and ethnicity. The program prepares students for entrance into the profession as teachers and scholars.
