Explore the vast region of Eastern Europe and Eurasia and take advantage of study abroad opportunities --- and learn to live and breathe another language. You can immerse yourself in another culture and personalize a plan of study that includes not only language, but politics, history, music and more.

Description

The certificate in Russian and East European studies encourages students to develop special competency in Russian or East European languages and area studies.

Coursework leading to the certificate is offered in agribusiness, architecture, biology, economics, Eurasian languages (Armenian, Tajik, Tatar and Uzbek), geography, history, international business, music, political science, religious studies, Slavic and East European languages (Albanian, Bosnian/Croatian/Serbian, Macedonian, Polish, Romanian and Russian), sociology and women's studies.

A student with a major in any school or department may pursue this certificate and develop a personalized plan of study in cooperation with an advisor in the Melikian Center.

Certificate holders enhance their prospects for study abroad fellowships and graduate admissions and also qualify for unique entry-level government employment opportunities. Past certificate awardees have moved into positions of leadership in government, academia and the private sector.

Other courses may be used with prior approval of the program director.

Students complete the minimum 20 credit hour requirement with 10 credit hours of regionally related electives selected from the above list of courses. Arranged honors thesis and upper-division colloquia offered by faculty affiliates of the Melikian Center many be credited toward the certificate. Up to four additional credit hours in the language used to fulfill the language requirement.

Capstone Project

In their junior or senior year, students will complete a one-credit hour individualized instruction course offered by the Melikian Center, built around readings on the contemporary geopolitics of the region. Students may instead complete a capstone project during their senior year, chosen in cooperation with a faculty advisor affiliated with the Melikian Center. The project should represent an extended, research-based focus on some dimension of the region's linguistic, cultural, religious, historical or political distinctiveness. It may take the form of an extended research paper from an upper division course, an honors thesis, a translation project, an internship or a study abroad experience.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.
Enrollment Requirements

For more information or to add the certificate, students should contact the Melikian Center at melikiancenter@asu.edu or call 480-965-4188.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Global Opportunities

Global Experience

The Critical Languages Institute at Arizona State University’s Melikian Center is a national training institute for less commonly taught languages, offering summer intensive courses and study abroad programs around the world. Languages taught include Albanian, Armenian, Bosnian/Serbian/Croatian, Hebrew, Indonesian, Macedonian, Persian/Farsi, Polish, Russian, Turkish, Ukrainian and Uzbek.

CLI instruction in Arizona and abroad is practically focused and proficiency-based. Students not only study a language, but learn to live that language. Specially designed summer intensives on the ASU campus prepare students, even beginners, to function competently in their language when they go abroad. Once overseas, students live and breathe their language; they participate in family life, join sports and gaming clubs, sing in choirs, join theater groups, appear on television, give presentations and make speeches, participate in neighborhood projects and otherwise actively immerse themselves in the culture of the language they are learning.
