Program Description

Degree Awarded: Certificate Innovation Leadership

This graduate certificate program in innovation leadership provides students with the cognitive and affective competencies to lead and facilitate innovation in the contexts of health care products, processes and systems. The emerging field of innovation leadership in health care requires individuals who can lead and facilitate change. Students will learn through reflection, personality assessment, public speaking, leadership network identification, entrepreneurship, idea pitching and change-readiness assessment. This certificate program will prepare students to work in this transdisciplinary and highly sought-after area of leadership.
