Degree Requirements

30 credit hours and a thesis, or
36 credit hours including the required capstone course (CRD 580)

Completion of the master's degree program in community resources and development requires two years of study on average. Students may select a thesis or professional. The thesis option is a research-oriented program and is recommended for students planning to continue graduate studies beyond the master's degree. The professional option is intended for students seeking additional knowledge and expertise relevant to professional career development. Advising and direction in both options are under the direct supervision of an assigned faculty member.

Program Requirements: Thesis Option
The thesis option consists of a minimum of 30 credit hours, including six credit hours of thesis, which must be defended in an oral examination before a supervisory committee of at least three faculty members, one of whom resides in another department.
