Emergency Management and Homeland Security (Emergency Management), MA

Currently ranked No. 1 by U.S. News & World Report, this program prepares you to be an agile, results-driven leader in emergency management and public safety. The degree program is customizable, with community resilience and disaster management courses, electives and five concentration options --- to fit your unique goals.

Program Description

The emergency management concentration within the MA program in emergency management and homeland security is designed for individuals who intend to assume greater management responsibility in helping communities reduce vulnerability to hazards and cope with disasters in both private and public settings. Students gain an essential understanding of the entire vision, mission and principles of emergency management with an emphasis on policy analysis and program evaluation, leadership, management, use of technology interagency and cross-sector collaboration. Core concepts and analytic approaches to disaster risk reduction and the promotion of community resilience capacity are addressed in concentration courses. Further, it leverages the PLuS Alliance for course offerings.

EMHS program students serve and promote stronger and more resilient communities across public, private or nonprofit sector organizations. The program emphasizes a blended approach of practical knowledge and broader integrative thinking about the complex societal challenges of the 21st-century. Its core values of collaboration between practitioners, faculty and students, public service, commitment to diversity, critical thinking and evidence-based assessment are all central to promoting informed and effective leadership.
