
This program ranked No. 1 by U.S. News & World Report prepares you to be an agile, results-driven leader in emergency management and public safety. The degree is customizable, with community resilience and disaster management courses, electives and five concentration options to fit your unique goals.

Program Description

The homeland security concentration within the MA in Emergency Management and Homeland Security degree is focused on homeland security as a field, applicable to all levels of government (federal, state, local) and to positions in private sector organizations with functional and operational related to organizational security. Students gain an essential understanding of the public policy and practice on homeland security and homeland defense issues, with an emphasis on policy analysis and program evaluation, leadership, management, use of technology interagency and cross-sector collaboration. The concentration leverages the PLuS Alliance for course offerings.

The MA EMHS program’s students serve and promote stronger and more resilient communities across public, private or nonprofit sector organizations. The program emphasizes a blended approach of practical knowledge and broader integrative thinking about the complex societal challenges of the 21st century. Its core values of collaboration between practitioners, faculty and students, public service, commitment to diversity, critical thinking and evidence-based assessment are all central to promoting informed and effective leadership.
